The theme of the event was "From Physical Products to Software Services and Solutions." The 15 full papers, seven short papers, and six doctoral symposium papers accepted for ICSOB were selected from 44 submissions and are organized in sections on: software business models and business process modeling; IT markets and software industry; IT within organizations; software product management; cloud computing; entrepreneurship and startup companies; software platforms and software ecosystems; and doctoral symposium. The symposium consisted of four half-day sessions on topics at the forefront of semiconductor electrochemistry and solution-based processing including etching, patterning, passivation, porosity formation, electrochemical film growth, energy conversion materials, deposition, semiconductor surface functionalization, photoelectrochemical and optical properties, and other related processes. This issue of ECS Transactions contains 18 of the papers presented including invited papers by H. Föll (Christian-Albrechts University Kiel), J. N. Chazalviel (Ecole Polytechnique, CNRS), D. N. The contributing authors are leading experts working in this challenging field, and each of their chapters provides a review of the most recent results in their areas and looks ahead to future research directions. The approaches to studying active matter are presented here from many different perspectives, such as individual-based models, evolutionary games, Brownian motion, and continuum theories, as well as various combinations of these. Applications covered include biological network formation and network theory; opinion formation and social systems; control theory of sparse systems; theory and applications of mean field games; population learning; dynamics of flocking systems; vehicular traffic flow; and stochastic particles and mean field approximation. Mathematicians and other members of the scientific community interested in active matter and its many applications will find this volume to be a timely, authoritative, and valuable resource.
