Teaching Writing Aug 02 2021 In the 21st century, writing is more important than at any other time in human history. Yet much of the emphasis in schooling has been on reading, and after the early years, writing skills have been given less attention. Internationally, too many children are leaving school without the writing skills they need to succeed in life. The evidence indicates that students rarely develop proficiency as writers without effective teacher instruction. Teaching Writing offers a comprehensive approach for the middle years of schooling, when the groundwork should be laid for the demanding writing tasks of senior school and the workplace. Teaching Writing outlines evidence-based principles of writing instruction for upper primary students and young adolescents. It presents strategies that are ready for adoption or adaptation, and exemplars to assist with designing and implementing writing lessons across the middle years of school. It addresses writing from a multimodal perspective while also highlighting the importance of teaching linguistic aspects of text design such as sentence structure, vocabulary and spelling as foundations for meaning-making. Contributors argue that students need to continue to develop their skills in both handwriting and keyboarding. Examples of the teaching of writing across disciplines are presented through a range of vignettes. Strategies for assessing student writing and for supporting students with diverse needs are also explored. With contributions from leading literacy educators, Teaching Writing is an invaluable resource for primary, secondary and pre-service teachers. Spelling It Out Feb 25 2021 Spelling can be a source of anxiety for school children and working professionals alike. Yet the spelling of words in English is not as random or chaotic as it is often perceived to be; rather, it is a system based on both meaning and a fascinating linguistic history. Misty Adoniou's public articles on the processes of teaching and learning spelling have garnered an overwhelming response from concerned parents and teachers looking for effective solutions to the problems they face in teaching English spelling to children. Spelling It Out, Revised edition aims to ease anxiety and crush the myth that good spelling comes naturally. Good spelling comes from good teaching. Based on Misty Adoniou's extensive research into spelling learning and instruction, this book encourages children and adults to nurture a curiosity about words, discover their history and, in so doing, understand the logic behind the way they are spelled.

Structuring the Thesis Oct 16 2022 The book is a collective investigation of the structuring of theses in education, the social sciences and other disciplines that commonly do not follow the standard procedures of the scientific method. To help research students design a structure for their own thesis and liberate their investigations from the constraints associated with the use of the conventional structure, it explains how the structures adopted were designed to suit the topic, methodology and paradigm. It also provides a wide range of examples to draw upon, which suit a broad spectrum of theory, methodological approaches, research methods and paradigms. Additionally, by analyzing the methodologies and paradigms, and reviewing the methodological and paradigmatic spectrum, it offers a significant contribution to the way research is conceptualized. The book addresses a number of key questions faced by students, supervisors and examiners: •Why do examiners often find it difficult to read work in non-scientific disciplines when theses are structured in accordance with the conventional scientific method? •Why do students in non-scientific disciplines struggle to write up the outcomes of their research in the conventional structure? •What alternative thesis structures can be devised to better suit the wide range of methods? •Which theories and paradigms are commonly followed in education and the social sciences and how do these perspectives influence the research process? •What methods, theories and paradigms are commonly adopted by education and social science students and what problems do these pose when students write their theses?

The Impact of Genre-Informed Persuasive Writing in the Chinese Tertiary Classroom

May 31 2021 Teaching approach is an important inquiry in second language (L2) writing scholarship. This study proposes that a genre-informed writing programme could be more effective than the current curriculum-material teaching programme in improving students' writing of English as a foreign language (EFL) in China. To ensure the inference validity from the outcomes of the genre teaching, three interrelated studies were conducted. Study 1 was to validate whether the genre-specific rubric, Assessment Tools for Teaching and Learning (asTTle) persuasive writing rubric, could be used to assess Chinese students' writing in university. The eight

Chinese teachers marked 10 official CET4 essays with both asTTle and CET4 rubrics, and the results showed that asTTle levels (2-6) could cover the different ranges of Chinese students' writing, although more training was needed to obtain high marking reliability. Study 2 developed two contrastive teaching programmes by reviewing the literature. The key difference between the two programmes was the explicitness of the genre knowledge. In the curriculum programme, the genre knowledge was partially included, and the explanations of the genre knowledge was implicit although the teaching was followed the L1 genre process. In the genre-informed programme, five genre dimensions were included, the contrastive knowledge of English and Chinese writing tradition, and annotated writing samples were applied to enhance the explicitness. A panel of experts validated that the two plans were distinct from each other and abided by their respective principles. Study 3 implemented a 13-week intervention with a counterbalanced design in which the second group serves as the control for the first group in Phase 1 treatment, and vice versa in Phase 2. The results showed that the difference between the gains under two teaching programmes was large with ($d=.86$, $d=.89$) for genre teaching in two phases. The findings indicated that the genre-informed writing programme was more effective than the current teaching practice. With the alignment of the teaching plan, intervention and measurement of genre dimensions, the validity of inference from the intervention was justified. The significance of the study lies in that the explicitness of the genre knowledge is adapted to the local context instead of following the practice in the L1 context. The study will provide evidence for improving writing pedagogy in the EFL context. Academic Discourse Aug 22 2020 Papers presented at a conference held June 14-16, 2003, in Pontignano, Siena.

Academic Literacies in the Middle Years

Oct 24 2020 The professional learning framework this book presents is designed to support teachers' understandings of how language functions in their academic disciplines. This framework—a 4 x 4 metalinguistic toolkit—is informed by systemic functional linguistic theory and international educational research on academic and disciplinary literacies. The book shows and explains how teachers have applied specific 4 x 4 toolkits with students in middle school classrooms across a range of subjects for curriculum literacy instruction, assessment and feedback, resulting in substantial growth for their students in high-stakes national tests of literacy, as well as writing assessments in a number of subjects. In its focus on disciplinary literacies in diverse sociocultural settings, Academic Literacies in the Middle Years responds to contemporary international curricula for English language and literacy and the need for a strong evidence base for professional learning design.

Evaluation in Foreign Language Education in the Middle East and North Africa Mar 09 2022 This book presents evaluation cases from the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) context, investigating the various facets of evaluation in different parts of the MENA region and beyond. In 19 chapters, it explores cases from Tunisia, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Sudan, Syria, the UAE, Turkey, Iran and Morocco. The book highlights the impact of evaluation on a range of stakeholders, arguing that it has repercussions at the individual, societal, economic, cultural and political levels, that it also has an ethical dimension, and that it is tailored to people's needs, helping them to remain abreast of the effectiveness and efficiency of programs. Further, the book explores controversial issues concerning different evaluation themes, such as teacher and staff evaluation, assessment practices, text genre analysis evaluation, assessment of productive skills, textbook and ICT evaluation, evaluation of ELT certificates and programs, quality assurance, ESP needs analysis, assessment literacy, and dynamic assessment. It addresses key challenges, such as who the “right people” to implement evaluation are, and the appropriate use of evaluation results to avoid any misuse or harm to any stakeholder. In closing, the book calls for further research venues on the relevance of evaluation, testing and assessment in the MENA context and beyond.

Handbook of Automated Scoring Nov 24 2020

"Automated scoring engines [...] require a careful balancing of the contributions of technology, NLP, psychometrics, artificial intelligence, and the learning sciences. The present handbook is evidence that the theories, methodologies, and underlying technology that surround automated scoring have reached maturity, and that there is a growing acceptance of these technologies among experts and the public." From the Foreword by Alina von Davier, ACTNext Senior Vice President Handbook of Automated Scoring: Theory into Practice provides a scientifically grounded overview of the key research efforts required to move automated scoring systems into operational practice. It examines the field of automated scoring from the viewpoint of related scientific fields serving as its foundation, the latest developments of computational methodologies utilized in automated scoring, and several large-scale real-world applications of automated scoring for complex learning and assessment systems. The book is organized into three parts that cover (1) theoretical foundations, (2) operational methodologies, and (3) practical illustrations, each with a commentary. In addition, the handbook includes an introduction and synthesis chapter as well as a cross-chapter glossary.
