Traces of History: Historical Development Of Roman Civilization From Prehistoric Times Through The Death of Constantine The Great In 337 A. D. This is one of the most significant military books of the twentieth century. By an outstanding soldier of independent mind, it pushed forward the evolution of land warfare and was directly responsible for German armoured supremacy in the early years of the Second World War. Published in 1937, the result of 15 years of careful study since his days on the German General Staff in the First World War, Guderian's book argues quite clearly, how vital the proper use of tanks and supporting armoured vehicles would be to the conduct of a future war. When that war came, just two years later, he proved it, Panzers with distinction in the Polish, French and Russian campaigns. Panzer warfare had come of age, exactly as he had forecast. This first English translation of Heinz Guderian's classic book - used as a textbook by Panzer officers in the war - has an introduction and extensive background notes by the modern English historian Paul Harris. Rebecca Rusch is one of the great endurance athletes of our time. Known as the Queen of Pain for her perseverance as a relentlessly fast runner, paddler, and mountaineer, Rusch was a normal kid from Chicago who abandoned a predictable life for one of adventure. In her new book Rusch to Glory: Adventure, Risk & Triumph on the Path Less Traveled, Rusch weaves her fascinating life's story among the exotic locales and extreme conditions that forged an extraordinary athlete from ordinary roots. Rusch has run the gamut of endurance sports over her career as a professional athlete-- climbing, adventure racing, whitewater rafting, cross-country skiing, and mountain biking--racking up world championships along the way. But while she might seem like just another superhuman playing out a fantasy, her empowering story proves that anyone can rise above self-doubt and find their own potential. First turning heads with her rock climbing and paddling skills, Rusch soon found herself spearheading adventure racing teams like Mark Burnett's Eco-Challenge series. She fought her way through the jungles of Borneo, raced camels across Morocco, threaded her way through rugged Tian Shan mountains, and river-boarded the Grand Canyon in the dead of winter. She was forced to stare down her own demons. Through it all, Rusch continually redefined her limits, pushing deep into the pain cave and emerging ready for the next great challenge. In 2013, Rusch faced a tough decision: retire or reinvent herself yet again. Determined to go on, she broke, she shifted her focus to endurance mountain bike racing and rode straight into the spotlight at a moment when most athletes walk away. Rusch to Glory is more than an epic adventure; it is a testament to the rewards of hard work, determination, and resilience on the long road to personal and professional triumph. Online publication: <https://pub.norden.org/temanord2020-505/> Abstract [en] The Nordic eHealth Research Network (NeRN) was established by the Nordic Council of Ministers (NCM) eHealth group in 2007. Its objective was to develop, test, and evaluate a common set of indicators for monitoring eHealth in the Nordic countries, Greenland, Faroe Islands and Aaland, for use to support the development of Nordic welfare. The results of the network's first three mandate periods are published in the Nordic Council of Ministers reports. Links can be found on the NeRN website: <https://thl.fi/en/web/thlfi-en/research-and-expertwork/projects-and-programmes/ehealth-research-network-nern> This publication reports the outcomes of the fourth mandate period focusing on five tasks: 1 New analysis of eHealth policies in the Nordic countries. 2 Updating common indicators in accordance with emerging new policy goals. 3 Developing a Nordic model survey to monitor citizen views on eHealth. 4 Cyber security in the Nordic Countries. 5 Personas for users of indicators of eHealth availability, use and outcome in the Nordic countries. Antistatic sprays from several different manufacturers are examined. The sprays are examined for contamination potential (i.e., outgassing and nonvolatile residue), corrosiveness on an aluminum mirror surface, and electrostatic effectiveness. In addition, the chemical composition of the antistatic sprays is determined by infrared spectrophotometry, and ultraviolet spectrophotometry. The results show that 12 of the 17 sprays examined have a low contamination potential. Of these sprays, 7 are also nonconductive when applied to an aluminum surface. And of these, only 2 demonstrate good electrostatic properties with respect to reducing voltage accumulation; these sprays did not show a fast voltage discharge rate however. The results indicate that antistatic sprays can be used on a limited basis where contamination potential, corrosiveness, and electrostatic effectiveness is not critical. For other applications is different and proper evaluation of the situation is necessary. Information on the properties of some antistatic sprays is presented in this document to aid in the selection process. Ming, James E. She thought that a successful career and a comfortable life in the city were enough to make her happy. Did she really need to know about the woman who had given her away? Adopted at birth, her first few years were happy. It hadn't mattered that she didn't know her heritage; she who loved her and wanted her. But divorce, and then death, ripped their tiny family apart at the tender age of six, she entered the foster care system. Over the next dozen years she shuffled from home to home. Finding her roots seemed an impossible dream. But dreams are resilient. An unexpected discovery awakens old yearnings of belonging to a family, of belonging to something bigger than herself. Finding the brief, ambiguous note from her birth mother is enough to unfurl the ribbons of hope still binding her heart. Her quest takes her to Lancaster County, Pennsylvania and the heart of the Plain community. Aided by her unique eye color, a healthy dose of luck, and the private investigator she hires, Taryn finds her birth family. Finding her mother is enough, but finding the truth is another matter. In all her musings, she never imagined a scenario where her mother might be Amish. She never imagined that the fabric of her life would be a patchwork of faith and fear, stitched together with a dark family secret. Taryn is determined to trace her roots, even if it means digging in the mud to do so. Now she's caught in the quicksand of a shocking discovery and the consequences of choices made, almost a decade ago. She'll risk everything to uncover the truth and to claim the family--and the roots--she desperately craves.

History that doesn't suck: Smart, crude, and hilariously relevant to modern life. Those who don't know history are doomed to repeat it. Too bad it's usually boring. Enter The Captain, the ultimate storyteller who brings history to life (and to your life). A hilarious, intelligent, brutally honest, and crude compendium to events that happened before any of us were born. The entries in this compulsively readable book bridge past and present on topics like getting ghosted, handling haters, and why dog owners rule (sorry, cat people). The way you'll get a glimpse of Edith Wharton's sex life, dating rituals in Ancient Greece, catfishing in 500 BC, medieval flirting techniques, and squad goals from Catherine the Great. You'll learn why losing yourself in a relationship will make you crazy--like Joanna of Castile who went from accomplished badass to Joanna the Mad after obsessing over a guy known as Philip the Handsome. You'll discover how Resting Bitch Face has been embraced throughout history (so wear it proudly). And you'll see why it's never a good idea to f*ck with powerful women--from pirate queens to diehard suffragettes to Cleo-f*cking-patra. People in the past were just like us--so learn from life's losers and emulate the badasses. The Captain shows you how.

Since 1958 the Maritime Administration has continuously conducted instructions on collision avoidance radar for qualified U.S. seafaring personnel and representatives of interested Federal and State Agencies. Beginning in 1963, to facilitate the expansion of capabilities and at the same time to provide the most modern techniques in training more radar simulators were installed in Maritime Administration's three region schools. It soon became apparent that to properly instruct the trainees, even with the advanced equipment, a standardize up-to-date instruction manual was needed. The first manual was later revised to serve both as a classroom textbook and as an onboard reference handbook. This newly revised manual, the fourth revision, in keeping with Maritime Administration policy, has been completely restructured to include improved and more effective methods of plotting techniques for Ocean, Great Lakes, Coastwise and Inland Waters navigation. Robert J. Blackwell, Assistant Secretary for Maritime Affairs. Now in its eighth edition, The Moral of the Story continues to bring understanding to difficult concepts in moral philosophy through storytelling and analysis. From discussions on Aristotle's virtues and vices to the moral complexities of the Game of Thrones series, Rosenstand's work is lively and relatable, providing examples from contemporary film, fiction narratives, and even popular comic strips. The report aims to gather the lessons learnt on the effects of HIT to costs and benefits to the use of use to organisations looking to develop and implement HIT programmes. This is a difficult exercise considering the multiple factors affecting implementation of an HIT programme. Factors include organisational characteristics, the kinds of changes being put in place and how they are managed, and the type of HIT system. The report finds that barriers to HIT implementation are still substantial but that some progress has been made on reporting organisational factors crucial for the adoption of HIT. However, there is a challenge to the studies and publications from HIT leaders (early implementers and people using HIT effect) to offer lessons beyond their local circumstances. The report also finds limited evidence on the cost-effectiveness of HIT. Princess Lu knows that the throne of the Empire of the East rightfully belongs to her. But now she can control a power ancient magic, and she's determined to use it to forge her own path and a strong future for the Empire, even if that means making enemies in court. But Min's magic isn't entirely under her control, and she must learn how to tame it before it consumes her . . . and the entire world. Min and the Empire are set for a confrontation that can't be stopped. But the Empire faces threats far greater than their rivalry, and even if they choose to stand together, it could cost them both their freedom or their lives. Presenting a ground-breaking study of the emerging phenomenon of local independence, this book examines the way in which the practices of 'global nomads', who travel the road, without fixed abode, place of employment or localised circle of friends, question the unwritten norms and ideals that characterise settled life in societies. With the practices of global nomads blurring the boundaries between travel, migration, and dwelling, Global Nomads and Extreme Mobilities draws on in-depth interviews with a worldwide group of location-independent travellers, together with virtual and instant ethnography and discourse analysis to show how lives oriented around extreme forms of mobility offer researchers in migration, tourism and mobilities a unique opportunity for examining the complex subjectivities and social relations associated with multi-mobility. With close attention to the nationalistic, political and travel-related attachments of global nomads and the ways in which their own representations and justifications of their lifestyles and subjectivities constitute a power negotiation, the book also examines 'global nomads' social and intimate relationships and the forms of exclusion and discrimination that they encounter, raising the question of whether they live inside or outside societies - and indeed, whether there can be any life outside societies. A re-assessment of contemporary research in the fields of mobility, migration and tourism studies, Global Nomads and Extreme Mobilities will appeal to scholars across the social sciences. This comprehensive book covers a wide range of key topics, from space and science to history and the nation.
