CA Ch Res #16 Dechlth Red 2005 Feb 10 2022

The Queen V Dec 16 2019 In The Queen V, the beloved OB-GYN, celebrity doctor, and star of Bravo's Married to Medicine reveals the twelve principles behind a happy and healthy vagina...and other lady parts. After twenty years of private obstetrics and gynecological practice, there's nothing Dr. Jackie Walters hasn't seen. And now, in her new book, the widely-adored OB-GYN invites you to put your feet in the stirrups and investigate. Whether she's covering libido, contraceptives, labiaplasty, or fertility, Dr. Jackie educates readers with her characteristic grace and pragmatism. Both funny and informative, she brings you on a quest through the female reproductive system—answering all the burning (and itching, and smelling...) questions you've always been afraid to ask. Dr. Jackie knows that every woman is different, and she's designed a reading experience that's tailor-made for each individual. After taking a fun quiz to uncover your own vaginal personality (V.P.), you'll embark upon an eye-opening journey of self-discovery. Are you a Mary Jane, a Sanctified Snatch, or a Notorious V.A.G.? What's the shape of your vaginal flower—rosebud, tulip, or carnation? Dr. Jackie reveals the answer and doles out advice so personal you'll feel like you're in the office talking to her. For every time you've been draped in a paper gown and too embarrassed to ask that question, Dr. Jackie has you covered. Her book is a woman's guide to self-awareness that will educate, entertain, and empower others to achieve vaginal liberation. It's a must-read for anyone who owns (or loves) a vagina.

The Germline DNA Damage Response

Actively Truncates C. Elegans Lifespan Jul 03 2021 Lifespan varies dramatically between species, from weeks in the case of the nematode C. elegans to thousands of years in the case of the conifer Pinus longaeva (bristlecone pine). What causes some organisms to live so briefly while others live for so long? The search for the answer to this question has resulted in the discovery of many experimental interventions that extend lifespan. One such intervention is the ablation of germ cells in the reproductive system. Lifespan control by the reproductive system has been demonstrated in C. elegans, in the fruit fly D. melanogaster, in the mouse species Mus musculus, and has even been suggested to apply to humans. This indicates that the effect of the reproductive system on lifespan may be conserved between invertebrates and mammals. The various experimental interventions known to increase lifespan have been used to evaluate a range of theories on aging. These theories attempt to explain the cause of aging from either a molecular or an evolutionary angle. Lifespan control by the reproductive system may be particularly useful in evaluation of the evolutionary theories of aging. However, current knowledge of lifespan control by the reproductive system is incomplete. While a number of molecular intermediaries in this control have been identified, upstream signals are largely unknown. The result is a fundamental lack of understanding of why the reproductive system controls lifespan. In this thesis, I identify the germline DNA damage response (DDR) as a possible driving force in the control of lifespan by the reproductive system. I find that levels of DDR activation rapidly increase with age in the germline of C. elegans. Increased germline DDR activation, effected by either targeted irradiation or genetic manipulation, leads to decreased lifespan. Conversely, the suppression of germline DDR through genetic means leads to increased lifespan. The checkpoint proteins ATM and ATR as well as insulin signaling play a central role in these lifespan effects. The lifespan increase caused by reduced germline DDR does not come at the cost of decreased reproductive activity. This suggests that the disposable soma theory is insufficient to explain this lifespan effect. I propose a model in which germline DDR actively decreases lifespan as part of a mechanism to limit post-reproductive lifespan. Such a mechanism is consistent with the kin-selection theory of aging. In addition to further elucidating the influence of the reproductive system on lifespan, I also demonstrate radiation hormesis in C. elegans through somatic cell irradiation. Previously reports have presented conflicting results when testing for radiation hormesis in worms, perhaps due to the obscuring effects of germline irradiation. My results demonstrate a reproducible way to increase lifespan by irradiation, opening the possibility of further investigation of the mechanism behind radiation hormesis using C. elegans as a model system.

Our resource breaks down each system of the human body to make it easier to understand as a whole. Start off by exploring the arteries, veins and capillaries. Examine your own heartbeat as you learn how to take your pulse. Then, follow the red blood cells as they bring oxygen to the rest of the body. Discover how the food we eat travels down to our stomach and gets digested. Learn how we get energy from that food, and what happens to waste that our body cannot digest. Travel through the excretory system to learn about all the different organs that help us get rid of waste. Build a model of a kidney to see it working in action. Finally, find out how two cells come together to create life.
